What is the surgical outcome for primary closure of large-volume lacerations of the scalp?--A retrospective study of 190 primary closures. The purposes of the study were to determine the percentage of primary closure performed for large-volume scalp lacerations that achieved an acceptable cosmetic result, to evaluate this result by patient and wound factors, and to determine whether experience or nonavailability of local skills affected the success rate. A retrospective review was conducted of all head and neck patients treated for trauma at a level I trauma center between 2000 and 2008. A chart review was performed to determine demographic and clinical data, including patient and wound factors, as well as the surgical technique used and the cosmetic result obtained. Four independent surgeons independently reviewed all charts to assign a cosmetically acceptable result. Fisher's exact test was used to compare the outcome data for the 2 groups, and the level of statistical significance was set at p < .05. I have a user-specific report that I am creating using the following code: `\begin{table}[H] \centering \begin{tabular}{*{20}{c}} Header 1`
