KeyMacro is a program that allows users to easily create macros for Windows and you can create a macro on a button that you can bind to a keystroke. If you are using a keyboard it will be much easier and faster to press a keystroke instead of typing the entire command. You can do almost anything to a file in the KeyMacro program, but there are two main areas of interest. The first is that you can open a new window or a new tab in your web browser. The second is that you can set up shortcuts that will perform a series of commands. A: In case of windows 10: You can use the windows GUI built in feature click on the Windows button and search for a tile called "Settings" and click it. A settings window will open. Scroll down to "System" and Click on "Keyboard" Select "Keyboard and Linguistic Preferences" On the right side you will see a tab called "Assign Shortcuts" Click on it and a new window will open. Click "+" and search for a specific app you want to bind a key to. Add a key by clicking on the keys in the first column and the corresponding app in the second column. Example: I want to press "Ctrl + A" and then open my chrome browser "Windows" is the first app to run. I'm pressing "Alt" and "F" on my keyboard and since I pressed "Alt" first
